1925 PRICE LIST

OF CHOICE KUNDERD

GLADIOLI

AND OTHER SPECIALTIES

OFFERED BY

WILLIAM N. CRAIG

Horticultural Specialist

340 Front Street. Weymouth, Mass.

HE GLADIOLI offered in this list are mainly varieties introduced by A. E. Kunderd of Goshen, Indiana, easily the world's foremost specialist in this magnificent flower. A limited number of varieties raised by other specialists are also listed and I will be pleased to furnish any varieties not found here at a moderate price. So numerous are the new Gladioli introductions that it is hardly possible to carry in stock all of the desirable varieties. The crop of bulbs recently harvested were in splendid condition, no artificial watering is given my stock but it is kept constantly cultivated, as a consequence bulbs are harder than where irrigation is afforded.

In 1923, which was my first year in business, numerous awards were made to my flowers, the record in 1924 was an equally good one. Amongst awards made were the following, First prize at Boston, before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and New England Gladiolus Society on August 15-17 for the best collection of Kunderd Gladioli arranged for effect, this group included 100 varieties and covered 150 square feet of space. Silver Medal at Manchester, Mass. August 26 and 27 for the best commercial collection of Gladioli, all varieties shown being of Kunderd introduction. First prize at Weymouth Fair, Aug. 29,-Sept. 1 for 50 varieties as well as a number of other premiums. September 15-16 certificate of merit from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for Lustre. Report of Superior Merit September 16 from the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston for high culture and artistic arrangement of Gladioli, and reports of Merit for Virginia Hale, Immensity and Lustre. This is only a partial list of exhibits made and awards received during the last year.

The GLADIOLUS is easily the leader amongst outdoor summer flowering plants in its simplicity of culture and popular favor. No other outdoor flowers even approach them in keeping qualities, nor in their infinite and fascinating range of colors. For use in the home, spikes should be cut as soon as the first flowers open, making long slanting cuts, leave however, sufficient foliage so that the bulbs may properly develop.

While Gadioli will grow and flower almost anywhere, they specially like a well enriched sandy loam, more retentive soils may be improved by the ploughing in of a generous coating of fine coal ashes, coarse sand or gravel, this will give the soil more porosity, and warm it. If possible spread a generous coating of well rotted cow manure on the land in the fall and spade or plough it in ere freezing up weather; leave the surface rough over winter, this will tend to make retentive soils more friable and will at the same time get rid of many soil Other animal manures may be used, while pulverized sheep, cattle and goat manures are all good, also bone meal. Fresh poultry droppings from the roosts are useful during the growing season if given as a light topdressing, especially where acid phosphate is used on the dropping boards. Any topdressing applied before spikes show, should be light and well hoed in about the plants.

Planting may commence as soon as frost has gone and the ground is workable and should continue until early July where a constant succession of flowers is desired. May is the month, however, when the main plantings should be made. I like to cover my bulbs an average depth of 6 inches; in heavy soils a little more shallow planting would be advisable; the smaller sizes of bulbs should be covered from 2 and one-half to 4 and one-half inches, according to size, bulblets need a 2-inch covering and ought to be soaked in cold water 48 hours before planting.

Large bulbs should go 4-5 inches apart, the rows may be of any desired width to suit cultivation, which should start from the time planting is done until the growing season ends. On persistent stirring of the soil much of the success in growing gladioli (or for that matter any other flower crop) depends. Artificial watering is of decided benefit in dry weather, but should not be overdone; thorough cultivation should always follow watering and rains.

Lifting may commence about the middle of September; handling the bulblets first, cut the tops off an inch above the bulbs and let them lay out in the sun for a day or two for a good drying ere storing away in a cool cellar with a temperature of not over 45 degrees.

In the subjoined list of varieties P, stands for PRIMULINUS varieties. K, for the KUNDERDI or Ruffled type, the balance are plain petalled varieties. I would draw especial attention to the wonderful assortment of PRIMULINUS varieties. These are freer bloomers than the larger flowered types, carry their flowers less closely on the spikes and are infinitely superior for artistic arrangements; they also contain colors unknown in the older types.

HARDY GARDEN LILIUMS

A fine selection in 25 varieties, price list on application.

HARDY POMPONE CHRYSANTHEMUMS

These plants are coming more strongly to the front, as they give an abundance of welcome flowers in fall when other flowers are passing. In addition to the varieties named several others of more recent introduction can be supplied. May is the best month for planting.

Donald. An excellent light pink.

Doris. A small flowered bronze, the most dependable of all pompones.

Excelsior. Very rich golden yellow.

Excellence. A dark mid-season variety, double compact flowers.

Golden West. A first class small flowered yellow.

Golden Pheasant. Rich orange yellow.

Jersey. Pure white, large flowered type.

Lillian Doty. Lovely lavender pink, very double.

Normandie. A lovely pale pink, very early. Provence. Bright pink, tipped yellow.

Pearl Cluster. A splendid white, turning to pale pink, very compact flowers.

Sylvia. Large bronzy red, very fine. Viola. Violet crimson, very rich color.

White Doty. A white form of the popular Lillian Doty.

Plants from pots, 25 cents each, $2.00 doz., $15.00 per 100.

HARDY GARDEN ROSES, OVER 150 VARIETIES ON MULTIFLORA STOCK.

Eastern grown stock only handled. Roses are one of my great specialties and I can furnish as fine plants as any Eastern firm. I invite inspection of my stock. Thousands of plants were sold last Fall and I did not receive one complaint as to quality. A splendid stock now in the ground for Spring sales. Send for descriptive Rose Catalogue, free on application.

Delphiniums, Phloxes, German, Japanese and other Iris, and other perennials.

Deciduous and Evergreen Trees and Shrubs supplied and planted.

Rose, Iris, Rock, Wild, and other types of garden prepared and planted.

Expert advice furnished on everything pertaining to horticulture.

Lectures given on horticultural subjects, illustrated if desired.

Lectures have been given before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural Society of New York, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Rhode Island Horticultural Society, The Garden Club of America, many Garden Clubs, Woman's Clubs. Improvement Association and other bodies, State Colleges at Amherst, Mass., Cornell, N. Y., Durham, N. H., and Kingston, R I. Terms on application.

To all those interested in horticulture I would most heartily commend membership in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the acknowledged leader of its class in America.

Last year over 1000 new members joined, and until the end of 1925 there is still an opportunity to join for the small sum of $2.00 per annum. Life membership cost $50.00.

I will be glad to propose the names of any desiring to join this excellent society. Some of the benefits to be derived from membership are: Free admission to all exhibitions for members and their immediate families; the use of the library (the finest of its kind in the New World), including the taking of books home; the receipt of all bulletins issued and each fortnight a copy of Horticulture, the official organ of the society.
